WILL YOU HELP THE RED CROSS?

Sewing Guild makes appeal for contributions--Acknowledgements for Xmas Parcels

Now that the Government has decided to raise money for the Patriotic Fund by taxation instead of by voluntary contributions, as formerly, it has been suggested that an effort be made to get monthly Contributions made to the Munson Red Cross Sewing Guild. A few of the men of the town and district have already been asked to transfer their monthly subscriptions from the Patriotic Fund to the Red Cross. These without exception have heartily agreed to the plan. The Royal and Merchants Banks have very kindly agreed to transfer the accounts when authorized to do so. It was thought that a number who have not subscribed to the Patriotic Fund would be quite willing to help the Red Cross by a small monthly donation. If you make your intention known to either of the the local banks the next time you are in town they will deduct any amount you wish from your account each month and add it to the Red Cross account. All you will have to do is to sign the paper, they present you with, authorizing them to deduct this amount from your account. It is felt that this sane and reasonable way of donating a small amount monthly, without any trouble whatever to the giver will appeal to all sensible people. The Red Cross feel sure that this appeal will meet with a very generous response from the people in the Munson district. Please enquire the next time you go into the bank. Remember that every cent of your money goes to help our wounded and convalescing soldiers, for all Red Cross work is voluntary and unpaid on the part of the workers. The following have already authorized their bank to deduct this monthly contribution from their accounts for the Red Cross: G. W. Carruthers, $1; G. C. Duncan, $1; H. MacKenzie, $1; H. W. Hutchings, $1; Dr. G. M. Gibson, $1; D. N. Shing, $1.50. Will you add your name to the list in the near future?

The Munson Red Cross Sewing Guild have received a number of post cards from Sapper William Humes, one of the Alberta boys now a Prisoner of War in Germany that our Society has adopted, assuring us of the receipt of a great number of parcels sent by the Red Cross for us, which were all in good condition.

Once again the Gartly District has sent in a splendid donation of $20.55, the proceeds of a dance held there. Please accept our grateful thanks and appreciation for the splendid help you are giving the Red Cross.

We wish to convey our grateful thanks to the following; Mrs. Vallery for a donation of $2 and Mrs. P. Murray for 5 day shirts.

INTERESTING NEWS FROM THE FRONT

Munson Boys write thanking Sewing Guild for Parcels --Other interesting News

Following are three letters which we consider the most interesting of those received by the Sewing Guild acknowledging receipt of Xmas parcels received by the Munson boys in France:

Dear Friends:

I am writing to let you know that the parcel you sent to me arrived the night before Christmas and was in perfect condition, and for which I send my sincere thanks, and to let you know that these remembrances sent to the soldiers have a great effect on their spirits as it makes us remember what we left home and country for. I have seen a good many parcels opened but I will say those parcels from Munson were really a credit to your judgments in what was needed and suitable for us here.

Well as you all know we are in a C. F. C. and I suppose that conveys the idea we are safe but such is not always the case. The place we were at last summer was out of range of the enemy with the exception of him dropping some bombs around us from his planes, but this fall were moved up to the front and on two special occasions we have been called upon to get right into the firing lines in the first place to rush timber to a —— in order to get guns and supplies and men to certain places, and as you know these are the points that are the heaviest shelled, but we put the timber there and the bridge was soon over. Later we were rushed to a forest to put a road through it 2 miles long. You all know the name of the wood but we can't tell it. Fritz was shelling the roads on each side, there had been a road through this wood but Fritz had dropped everything into it that would reach it. He shells us all the time we are at it but in the fight above our heads we had the satisfaction of seeing two of his machines come tumbling down and of seeing what a machine looks like after it has hit the ground and of seeing how suddenly the lamp of life is put out. There are sights at these places that men like to forget and which brings to us all that thought, "is there not some other way to settle the differances between nations?" There is one thing I will say, I have met some German prisoners that seem fair and good fellows, but when we see and come into daily contact with some of the things they do as a fighting nation, I have no further use for them for they are not human. Well we are hoping to get back home before another Christmas but that no one knows. As to the way we are fed here we have nothing to complain of while there are many things we might like our health is not suffering for what we don't get. The weather has been very cold for France but our boys like the cold as it does away with that horrible mud. Even Munson mud is not in it with the mud in France. We are rushing our work just now as everything is froze up.

I must close as you will get tired of reading this letter again thanking you all for remembering us out here and wishing you all a prosperous and happy New Year and assuring you that your labors are not in vain but they shall have their reward, I am yours very truly,
Sgt. W. H. Giles.

Dear Friends:

Very many thanks indeed for the parcel which I received from you yesterday, which reminded me that the people of Munson had not forgotten me. It seems a long long time since I left Munson, but I do hope I will see it again before long. My friends in Munson, though, seem to have forgotten me altogether for letter writing. I never see a Munson Mail at all. How are the Trelfords, the Tarrs, Robinsons, Whytes, McConkey & Bowey, Skinners, etc are going on? I seem to have completely lost track of the place. Has the place changed any at all? Have you any new post cards of the town, etc. which would interest me at all? Strange things have happened since this war commenced and I may say with being settled here I met and have married a very nice young French lady who joins me in thanking you for the parcel you sent, and who is looking forward to the time when we will return and settle down among you in Munson.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, believe me to be,
Yours very sincerely.
Richard Foster

Dear "Guild."—

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your splendid Xmas parcel to hand 3 days ago. The parcel reached me in excellent condition and contained a useful assortment of things to eat and otherwise. The Xmas pudding was delicious and the socks very acceptable. I wish to assure you all of my grateful appreciaton of your kindness.

Speaking generally the parcels are a great boon to the boys in France, especially those parcels containing things to eat. I feel sure you would find some measure of reward could you but see how eagerly the boys look forward to these substantial tokens of remembrance by those at home and what excitement prevails when the parcels are opened. May I ask that you will convey my heartiest thanks to "Tommies Helpers Club" for their donation to the parcel. I wish them every success in their work and the best of luck.

The weather is cold but we have occasional bright days. The ground is covered with snow so I suppose the winter is here to stay for awhile It is only a matter of a few weeks and we shall be able to notice the days lengthening and the sun gaining in strength and then spring. It cannot come to soon.

Once more let me thank you all very much indeed for your kindness and with every good wish for the new year, I am,

Gratefully and sincerely yours,
Alfred Adams, 625015

GOOD MOTHERS

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox)

What is a good mother? Is it she who provides everything for a selfish son? Who provides education, refinement, opprotunity?

Is there a better mother than that?

If so, every Mother wants to be that better Mother, for history has to show that rarely has there been a great man who didn't have a great Mother.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox gives that hint in February Cosmopolitan—you'll have to read her poems over several times; for the best part of it is that you have to do most of the thinking—she starts you going.

War Service Badges Ready

Four Classes Distinguished and Applications Should Be Made at Once

The militia department advises that war service badges are now ready for issue and recommends that applications be sent in through district headquarters without delay.

A different badge is issued for each of the four classes, which are as follows:

Class A—For members of the C.E.F. who have seen active service at the front and are now on duty in Canada, or who have been honorably retired or discharged.

Class B—For members of the C.E.F. honorably retired or discharged on account of old age, wounds, or sickness, rendering them permanently unfit for service, after having seen service in England or at the front.

Class C—For members of the C.E.F. honorably retired or discharged on account of old age, injuries or sickness, rendering them unfit for service, after having seen service in Canada.

Class D—For men who offered to enlist prior to August 10, 1917, and were rejected as and still are medically unfit and for members of the C.E.F. honorably retired or discharged who are not entitled to any other badge, provided that they are medically unfit.

With reference to the first three classes the militia department announces that no men are eligible for the badges who have been discharged within three months of enlistment unless for disabilities caused by service, discharged by reason of stoppage of working pay, or discharged as unlikely to become efficient soldiers, unless for disabilities caused by service.

All men applying for Class D badges must undergo a further medical examination. Should a man qualify under both Classes A and B he is entitled to both badges, but no man receiving the badge of Class A or that of Class B, or both, shall receive the badges of Class C or Class D.

With reference to the Canadian patriotic fund badges for service on the front, which have been issued in some number, the department states that holders of these must apply for a war service badge, Class A, and discontinue the wearing of their present badge. The same rule applies to the C.E.F. badge for service in England only, but in the latter case the holder should apply for a Class B war service badge.

Extravagance Is Under Suspicion

A Canadian correspondent, writing from England, makes the following observation, which is not without its significance for those who imagine that they "must keep up appearances" in connection with the consumption of food:

"To be too well dressed and too fashionable nowadays induces the suspicions to regard the luxurious one as a profiteer or the near relative of one of these outcasts."

U. S. Firms Control Canadian Fisheries

Dominate Lake Fisheries Because Chief Market Has Been in U.S.

The greater portion of the Canadian lake fishing business is controlled by United States firms, and this is due to the fact that more than 90 per cent. of the total output finds its market in the United States.

On our Great Lakes, a very large fishing industry is carried on, not only during the summer and autumn months but also in mid-winter, when the fish are taken through the ice, and owing to climatic conditions can be transported long distances without requiring expensive methods of refrigeration. They are frozen naturally as soon as taken from the water and are shipped to various centres in the United States especially in the Western states, although there is a growing demand for Canadian lake fish in Eastern markets also.—From 'Fish, Birds and Game,' published by the Commission of Conservation.

New Servant-girl Story

The wife of a successful young literary man had hired a buxom Dutch girl to do the household work. Several weeks passed and from seeing her master constantly about the house, the girl received an erroneous impression.

"Oggcuse me, Mrs. Blank," she said to her mistress on day, "but I like to say somedings."

"Well, Rena?"

The girl blushed, fumbled with her apron and then replied, "Vell, you pay me four tollars a vek—"

"Yes, and I really can't pay you any more."

"It's not dot," responded the girl; "but I be villing to take three tollars till—till your husband gets vork."—Boston Transcript.

Winnipeg is to have a rye flour mill, which will produce another available substitute for wheat flour. The mill will have a capacity of 100 barrels per day, grinding both spring and winter rye. First Germany Must Be Beaten

In Order to Obtain the Sort of Peace That Would Be Worth While

What will be the effect of Lord Lansdowne's letter in Germany? Simply to give the military party, which is in complete control, an opportunity to claim that Britain is worn out with the war and ready to quit. And any quitting now would be a German victory. Every utterance of importance from Germany shows that the party that brought on the war as a war of conquest is determined to end it on that basis only.

The defeat of Germany is the first requisite to obtaining the sort of peace that would be worth the terrible sacrifices that have been exacted from the nations by the wicked men who determined on a world dominion to be won by violence.

There is not the slightest reason to suppose that this is not the feeling in England. Lansdowne no more speaks for Britain than La Follette or Gore speak for the United States. Every nation has its faint hearts. They are not the men who control.—Kansas City Star.

A Hun Raid

Canadians Were All Ready and Gave Them a Surprise

Raids are often carried out by both British and Germans, this being one of the methods through which the commandants obtain information as to the strength and disposition of the opposing troops. A Hun raid which was successfully repulsed is described by a Saskatchewan man. "It so happened," he writes, "that I was out a bit from our lines that night on a certain duty, and was just in the middle of it when I thought I detected a suspicious sound coming from the vicinity of the German lines. Now, being out alone, one is apt to give one the creeps. One imagines things. One even imagines one hears things where no such things exist. And as for hearing, why, you're always hearing something or other. So, to make sure, instead of going back a bit I went forward, and lay still. It was terribly dark. Nothing suspicious could I see, but after a few moments I distinctly heard the twang of a wire. It was perhaps fifty yards off. Then I knew! That wire must have been touched, and by somebody who was out for no good.

"I needn't tell you what exactly I did after that, but I found ways and means of letting the boys know that Fritz was out, and as he was probably out in force, the boys took no chances. They got his number right for him. He came for it, lots of him, and got it. Just as he was within a few yards of us he got it right and strong. Talk about surprises! The Huns let out a yell as if the universe were collapsing, and some of them, so far from turning tail, ran right forward and were gathered in like nibbles off a bush. How many escaped I don't know, but judging from the numbers we caught, and the numbers we found lying next day, precious few, I should say."

Hogg Bristled Up

"Miss Jones," said the hostess, "permit me to introduce Mr. Hogg, author of those delightfully clever poems you just have read."

"I am glad to meet Mr. Hogg," said the young woman. "Pardon the question, but is that your real name?"

"Certainly," said Hogg, bristling up. "Did you think it was my pen name?"

The Allied War Conference

The Results of the Conference Have Been Highly Satisfactory

There has naturally been no talk of peace since the interallied conference at Paris. The sessions have been entirely concerned with the winning of the war. The terms of peace come afterwards.

The results of the conference have been highly satisfactory. Not only has the allied war council been established for land operations, but a supreme inter-allied naval committee of consultation also has been agreed upon. Naturally in this connection Great Britain's voice will be decisive seeing that her navy is the basis of the entire entente alliance.

The entente powers are now ready to prosecute the war with a singleness of purpose such as they have not previously known. They can control the British, French and Italian fronts as one war theatre and move troops and supplies accordingly. The resultant strengthening of their offensive and defensive power will be considerable. And opportune also. For the central powers, judging from their savage blows against the Italians and on the Cambrai front, are fighting more fiercely than they ever did in hope to secure a decision before the spring.

With the million men or so they will secure through Russia's disorganization, they hope to bring the allies to the peace-table in a few months. They already realize that the submarine piracy will never do it.—Vancouver World.

The German Colonies

Must Be Free for All Time From German Oppression

Fortunately the Germans cannot get their colonies back until they have defeated the British navy. The world has plain warning of what will happen if it places these enemies of humanity in a position to renew their plot against mankind. The German colonies would become places of arms and bases for the pirate submarines. In all the German plans there is no thought for the native. He is to be treated as a beast. As a beast he has been treated in the past. In the German Southwest Africa forced labor was imposed on every native over the age of seven; all natives could be flogged by any member of the German police; and no native could own horses or cattle. The allies, who believe in human freedom and in the Christian doctrine of the worth to the individual, cannot restore it at any price.—London Daily Mail.

STUDY AND EXERCISE

Overstudy and lack of exercise make thin bloodless children. Study does not usually hurt a child at school unless the studies encroach on time that should be spent in plenty of-doors exercise. But lack of exercise and overstudy is a combination that leads on to "sluts and dawdles." your boy or girl at school is thin and pale, listless and inattentive, has a feeble appetite and is unable to stand still, you must remember that health is much more important than education, and more study should be given to exercise and recreation.

See to it at once that the child does not overstudy, gets plenty of out-of-door exercise, sleeps ten out of every twenty-four hours, and takes a safe, reliable tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until the color returns to the cheeks and lips and the appetite becomes normal. For growing children who become pale and thin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not only safe but in most cases are the very best tonic that can be taken. These pills build up the blood, strengthen the nerves and assist nature in keeping pace with rapid growth.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Music During Air Raids

The Spirit in Britain That Will Not Down

To the folk of London town air raids have ceased to be a novelty. Londoners are meeting the trying circumstances with fortitude. During the raids music is frequently called into commission to enable the people to keep cool, be cheery and stand the strain.

One evening it is related that when the enemy planes were over the sheltered corner of a busy thoroughfare ground out Leslie Stuart's "Soldiers of the Queen" with an air of defiance that is typical of the British spirit. In the days of the South African war that same number which was then "Soldiers of the Queen," nerved many a heart.

A little later the same evening there was heard in a home some voices accompanied by a piano singing the old hymn "Hold the Fort." These represent the spirit that will not down.

A Pill That Is Prized.—There have been many pills put upon the market by unscrupulous persons for self-attention, but none has endured so long or met with so much favor as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Widespread use of them has attested their great value, and they need no further advertisement than this. Having honestly established themselves in public esteem, they now rank without a peer in the list of standard vegetable preparations.

This Means You!

"Eat less wheat, meat, sugar and fats, to save for the army and our allies," says the food controller. "Eat more corn, oats and rye products, fish and poultry, fruits, vegetables and potatoes, baked, boiled and boiled foods."

This means you! To ask the Canadian people to eat less of certain foods in order that the soldiers at the front may not go short is a matter of intense seriousness.

In French towns which may be shelled or bombed almost every window has two strips of paper pasted from corner to corner diagonally on the inside. This minimizes the risk of breakage through concussion and many thousands of panes of glass have been saved by this simple precaution.

Torpedoboats Dash and Swirl in Apparently Aimless Circles Chasing Prey

"It was a clear day off Folkestone. In the channel two English torpedo boats leaped. There was a sudden stir of excitement. The torpedo boats put on full steam and began dashing about in apparently aimless circles. A seaplane whirled out of the bay and spun aloft, circling a spot in the water. Wabbling sagously saw a dark shadow which sank back into the depths. Motor lorries hurried several detachments of soldiers to the shore as the hovering guards of the coast drove their prey toward land. The soldiers kept a curious populace back until dark. Next morning all was calm as usual, but another German submarine had been added to the list captured by England's sea hunters.

"It happened just outside our window," Mrs. Bates said. "We wanted to see what became of the German crew, but we got no more pointed. Whatever happened was obscured by darkness."

Mr. and Mrs. Bates were in England at the beginning of the war. They sailed for the United States in September.

"It may sound strange," Mrs. Bates said, "but about the best thing we found in England was good home-made bread. After a diet of English war bread—a grayish, sticky substance composed of a little wheat and a lot of something else—American bread seemed the best food we had ever tasted."

On the return voyage Mrs. Bates' vessel was attacked twice by submarines. The first attack was late on a clear morning. A lookout sighted a periscope and the wake of a torpedo speeding toward the ship. The vessel veered and the torpedo passed 50 feet astern. Then the navy gunners unlimbered their cannon and the U-boat disappeared.

The next attack resulted disastrously for another of the kaiser's sea terrors. The U-boat fired two torpedoes, which missed. Naval gunners fired a shot of shot toward the periscope. Mrs. Bates counted 68 shots. The captain of the gun crew couldn't tell from what point the ship gossip had it that the gun crew's first shot disabled the "sub," and that it went down.

In London Mrs. Bates saw the first Zeppelin downed by an English airplane. Her husband and wife awakened by the roar of bursting bombs. They hurried into the street. Hundreds of lights darted through the sky and finally the Zeppelin was flooded with light. Two white lights darted in, there was a rattle of machine gun fire and the Zeppelin fell in flames.

For his services of England Mrs. Bates has the strongest praise. Women are doing everything, she says in England, cheerfully. Wives of noblemen are serving in hospitals under their former servants, scrubbing floors and waiting on tables. The hospitals generally are without steam heat— making bandages and stooping gladly to the hardest kind of manual labor.

Cafes and theatres, now are attended chiefly by refugees, Mrs. Bates says.

"The English, without exception, have taken the hardships of the war," Mrs. Bates said. "If anyone suggests a table for bridge she is looked on as an enemy of the country."

A Debt to the Navy

But for the British Navy War Would Have Been Over in Six Months

Whatever mobility, whatever power of interoperation and endurance the allies possess they owe first and foremost to the sea. But for the British navy, as we can all see now, the war would have been over in six months and Germany would have won. Defeat the British navy and all the hopes of the allies and all their achievements would even now crumble to worthlessness. No disaster on land is altogether irreparable so long as we hold the seas. No triumph on land that ever was or any of our allies could win would be permanent if at the same time we ceased to be supreme on the seven seas.

What the navy has accomplished in safe-guarding the transport of 13,000,000 men and hundreds of millions of tons of materials; in making it possible for the allies to draw on the entire world of neutrals for all they have needed; in sweeping German commerce from the seas and pressing with relentless finger upon the main artery of German life; and in furnishing the protection under which our merchantmen have brought us and our allies not only the material of war but the means of existence, is a tale the wonder and heroism of which, when it is fully told, will remain forever a precious heritage of the British heritage.—London Daily Mail.

Preparing for a Harvest

As the oats in her hat nodded and trembled, Miss Billikin tickled the ear of the man seated next to her. He stood it in silence for some time, then he ostentatiously took a huge pocket knife out of his pocket and began to sharpen it on the sole of his boot.

Briton and Hun

Germans Averse to Coming to Close Quarters

The difference between the British and German troops is strikingly demonstrated in the following letter from a Canadian Highlander now in hospital in England:

"It's not a case of blowing our own horn," writes the Highlander, "to assert that we can lick Fritz hollow at the game of night-hunting. Rat-catching we call it, and its a fine art with us, but that by the way. The fact is that its all a matter of temperament. Our lads love it. Fritz hates it, or so we judged from the readiness with which he always threw up the sponge when he was caught in the act, so to speak. Tha's a funny thing about the German. We've seen it over and over again. Put him behind a gun, a machine gun for preference, and he'll stick there till he's blue, or until you get too near him to be comfortable. At a certain moment, however, he'll just collapse sudden-like and shout 'Kamerad.' He doesn't like close quarters.

"Of course, his own night-hunting means close quarters for him. I don't [illegible] can't be forced into it to begin with. Our boys, believe me, don't need any forcing. I've seen night raids now for the last year or two, and, against all types, from Prussians to Saxons, but I never knew anyone to hesitate taking part in them. In fact, there used to be a sort of experimental rivalry as to who would excel in them. Now, I don't think there's anything of that sort on the German side. My idea is that there's a regimental rivalry there to get out of them. At any rate, as I say, they always give in pretty readily when they find themselves up against it, and even seem glad to be out of the business with a whole skin—if they're lucky enough."

German Artillery Losses

Secret Report of Enemy General Staff Found by French Army

The London Daily Chronicle correspondent with the French armies states that a secret report issued October 4, by the chief of the German general staff and signed by Ludendorff himself, shows alarming losses in the German artillery. This report states that during the grand operations, it average number of guns lost by a single German army in a single month either by wear and tear, or enemy fire, is: Field guns, 870; heavy pieces, 585. In other words the arsenals and workshops are obliged to make or repair pieces to the extent of three-quarters of the whole artillery establishment, merely in order to maintain existing strength.

No Bran or Shorts Allowed Exported

Farmers' Feed Supply Will Be Provided For

In order to assist in the campaign for greater production of food animals, the food controller announced that not a ton of bran and shorts will be allowed to be exported until the Canadian requirements are fully met. The food controller is also considering the question of fixing prices for such feed, but in any case it will be made available to the farmers at the lowest possible cost, and the profits of the dealers may be fixed as soon as information from the several provinces is received in response to inquiries which have been sent out.

The government refused to allow the exportation by a large milling company of 143 cars of bran and shorts, but purchased them and resold them to farmers without any charge for the government's service.

Applications for feed should be addressed to the food branch of the department of agriculture, Ottawa. Mr. Hanna stated that, if necessary to insure the farmers obtaining feed supplies, the government will take total output of mill by-products and distribute it. He added that action would be taken at once in case of complaints that the mills were requiring the purchase of flour with the offals. This practice must be discontinued.

A separate feed branch of the Dominion department of agriculture is being established in Winnipeg to serve Western Canada.

Shorter Day's Work After the War

English Labor, After Taste of Better Conditions, Will Not Recede

Lord Leverhulme, head of a great English soap industry, the combine which is 200 million dollars, has very pronounced views as to the effect of the great war on the future position of the nation's workers. Lord Leverhulme is himself a model employer, having provided for his employe's people a model town in which they live under delightful social conditions, and having also provided also facilities by which they may secure direct financial interest in the concern in which they are wage earners.

"It may, I think, be taken for granted," he says, "that when peace is restored workers will not be willing to return to pre-war conditions of wage remuneration, and of hours they will never consent to go back to them.

"The war has altered many things; it has broadened out horizon; it has given us new points of view; it has clarified our thought; it has also created radical changes into our social, industrial and commercial systems.

"Most of them live for the first time tasted and enjoyed the sweets of life, the full fruits of labor; they have grown accustomed to a higher plane; its pleasures and advantages; they will strive to remain on that level and, if possible, rise above it, and with this aspiration I am in full sympathy and accord. And if, after the war, any attempt should be made to thrust labor back into the depths from which it has ascended it would be, in my opinion, not only a disastrous economic blunder, but a policy akin to crime against civilization and humanity."

Morale of Allies is Splendid

Col. E. M. House Says British and French Determined to Win at All Costs

What the American mission was sent to accomplish at the war conference in Paris "has been successfully and satisfactorily done," was the message brought to the American people by Col. E. M. House, head of the mission, who returned to the United States recently with four of his colleagues.

"In England and France the influence of the United States is paramount," said Col. House. "In both countries the morale is splendid—the best I have observed on my two-and-three trips abroad since the beginning of the war."

"You mean the morale of the fighting forces?" Col. House was asked.

"No, I mean the men in uniform and the people as a whole," he replied.

"Their determination to win without thought of the cost is admirable."

In reply to a question as to what the council decided to do with reference to various military matters, Col. House said the deliberations were concerned primarily with the economic situation. He declared what had been decided upon with reference to this situation would not mean the introduction of any measures "radically different" from those now operative in the United States.

Col. House said he did not discuss war aims while abroad. In his estimation, he declared, one person's opinion was as good as another's as to what Russia might be expected to do. Gathering of data in preparation for the eventual peace conference was purely incidental and entirely aside from the main purpose of the mission.

American representation at any further councils of an inter-allied nature was entirely a matter for President Wilson's decision, Col. House stated, and he knew nothing of the president's intentions respecting the return of himself or other delegates to such a conference.

To Stop Food Profiteering

Recommendations to Prevent Speculation and Curb Profits

Recommendations calculated to prevent speculative operations and to eliminate undue profits by retail or wholesale dealers in food have been made to the food controller by the special committee, representing the wholesale and retail trade, which was called together by him. The regulations recommended by the committee are similar in their general outline to those adopted by the United States food administration, as the result of five months' study of the problem, during which time more than 200 conferences were held.

The committee favored a basis of control of the handling of food products, which would eliminate all undue profits and yet not impose upon the manufacturer or merchant any unfair restrictions, as compared with those upon other elements in the community.

The committee recommended the adoption of a license system to be applied to six branches of the trade in food commodities. License fees ranging from one dollar up are proposed. The committee also recommended abolition of rebates, secret commission, and combined sales operations. Other recommendations included in the report are: regulation of salesmen and delivery systems, in order to reduce the cost of distribution; requirement by the food controller of monthly returns showing stocks on hand of certain essential foodstuffs, so as to enable the food controller to check overstocking and to prevent hoarding; strict control over every branch of the trade in regard to profits. In this connection it is proposed to limit profits to a maximum percentage on turnover, and in no case to allow them to exceed the normal pre-war profits.

Canada's Share

A subscription of $300,000,000 this time will bring the Dominion's war loans up to $650,000,000. The proportional total for the United States would be $8,125,000,000 so we shall have to subscribe a third Liberty loan to overtake and pass her. However, Canada has lent the mother country some $600,000,000, which is relatively to her population about equal to the $7,500,000,000 we shall lend all allies in the first year of war. It must be considered also that the Dominion has been fighting for three years and has contributed a great proportion of her men—and there are no better fighters on any of the battlefronts.—New York Sun.

British Railways in the War

Government Control Has Successfully Solved Problem of Transportation in War Time

On the day England declared war on Germany, August 4, 1914, the government took over the railroads. The lines remained the property of the companies, and the general machinery of administration went on as before. But the roads were under the general direction of an executive committee appointed by the government. The presiding officer was the general manager of an important road. Working with him were twelve other general managers.

There was no attempt to supersede the railway staffs in the management of the roads. But the main plans were outlined by the government, and the roads were operated in accordance with these policies. In the movement of troops, for instance, the government told the executive committee what had to be done, and then the committee arranged the details.

The government guaranteed each road a net revenue in a given year to that of 1913, and the government paid 4 per cent. interest on new capital.

The great advantage of this plan was that it left the railroads free to be conducted as one system without regard to whether such operation was calculated to cut down the earnings of one line and increase those of another. Each manager on the executive committee knew that his road's profits were no incentive to see that his road got its share of the business unless it was to the advantage of the whole transportation scheme that it got the business.

The American problem, of course, is much greater than the British. But the way the British government handled the situation indicates that it can be done in this country.—Kansas City Star.

Canadian Designs For Industrial Purposes

Developing a Distinctive Canadian Productive Art

The war has cut off the supply of designs from Europe on which Canadian manufacturers depend and the Geological Survey is making an effort to develop a distinctively Canadian productive art, using as a basis the designs of Indian pottery, and also designs from our fruits, leaves, fossils, flowers and animals. Various museums scattered throughout Canada furnish a wealth of material from which to adapt designs and manufacturers are taking a keen interest in the movement. There are 175 Canadian industries using ornamental designs in the manufacture of their products. Some of the products in which these designs figure most prominently are rugs, pottery, china, book covers, wall paper, fountains, lace, embroidery and jewellery. —Harlan I. Smith.

An Unhappy Inference

Didn't Care for Theological Works of Any Description

A student assistant, engaged in reading the shelves at the public library, was accosted by a primly dressed middle-aged woman who said that she had finished reading the last of Laura Jean Libby's writings, and that she should like something just as good.

The young assistant, unable for the moment to think of Laura Jean Libby's name, hastily scanned the shelf on which she was working and, choosing a book, offered it to the applicant, saying: "Perhaps you would like this, 'A Kentucky Cardinal.'"

"No," was the reply, "I don't care for theological works."

"But," explained the kindly assistant, with needless enthusiasm, "this cardinal was a bird!"

"That would not recommend him to me," said the woman, as she moved away in seach of a librarian who should be a better judge of character as well as of Laura Jean Libby's peers.

The food controller is being given authority to license dealers in food supplies, and a general plan of licensing is being prepared. Before it is applied to any particular trade, representatives of that trade will be consulted.

In Jerusalem, bread costs 11 times as much as it did prior to the war. Petroleum costs 30 times as much as in 1914, and milk five times.

What Will It Do For Me?

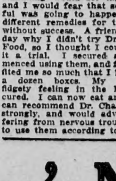
YOU have heard of the great good this food cure is accomplishing for others. You have come to realize that nervous diseases do not right themselves, and therefore feel the necessity of some treatment to help you back to health and strength.

Now comes the all-important question as to what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do for you.

Basing our answer on a knowledge of the restorative value of the ingredients contained in this food cure, and on the experience of those who have proven its curative powers under the most trying conditions, we want to tell you that—

It will make your blood rich and red.

It will nourish the starved nerve cells back to health and vigor.



Mrs. C. French, 104 Lansdowne street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, frequent headaches and indigestion. For many years I was troubled with a twitching or fidgety feeling about my limbs after retiring, causing me much loss of sleep. It wakened out of my first sleep, even had I been asleep only five minutes, I would lie awake for hours and could not get to sleep again. Any sudden noise or a door slamming would set my nerves going, and I would fear that something dreadful was going to happen. I had tried different remedies for this trouble, but without success. A friend asked me one day why I didn't try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I thought I could at least give it a trial. I secured some and commenced using them, and found they benefited me so much that I have taken fully a dozen boxes. My nervousness or fidgety feeling in the limbs is entirely cured. I can now eat and sleep well. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food strongly, and would advise anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind to use them according to direction."

It will cure nervous headaches by removing the cause.

It will strengthen the action of the heart.

It will correct the weakness and inactivity of the digestive organs.

It will restore energy, ambition and confidence.

It will prevent the development of nervous prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Why not put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test? We know that the formula is right: We have proven to you by thousands of reports from cured ones that this treatment positively effects cure, even in the most complicated cases.

We cannot do more. It remains for you to make the test. You have everything to gain by using this building-up treatment, for it cannot fail to be of at least some benefit to you.

HOW IT IS IN EUROPE

In Mr. Hoover's latest communication to the members of the United States Food Administration he says; "There is no waste of food among our Allies. There is the most drastic reduction in their consumption. There is actual privation among their women and children. There is starvation in Belgium." He explained that "every particle of diminished consumption by the people of America is one particle more for the soldiers, men, women and children of our Allies, and for the starving people in other countries. Voluntary individual self-sacrifice to save the world is the call to the people of the United States and Canada in one of the greatest crises of the war."

THE metropolitan newspaper of today aims to carry ALL the news. Ranking equal in importance to the news contained in its reading columns is that which is found in its advertising columns. Both are of interest to the reader. THE CALGARY HERALD IS THE ONLY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN CALGARY WHICH CARRIES THE FULL STORE-NEWS ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE BIG STORES. Proportionally it is patronized by the other merchants who have good goods to sell. To the buyer in and out of town this is an important factor in the choice of a newspaper.

What is Your Wife's Salary?

Don't think the question absurd. We ask it to emphasize the fact that wives do not get salaries; they just work for their board and clothes. They can't lay aside anything for times of sickness or old age. Their husbands are supposed to do that for them.

It is pretty selfish of a man not to make proper provision for his wife in the event of his sudden death. To be sure the law gives her a definite portion of his estate; but supposing he leaves no estate. Business risks, bad investments, hard times, luxuries—these may leave her penniless.

An Imperial Life policy will provide the one definite, sure and easily obtained provision for your wife; and she deserves something definite and sure—doesn't she?

Ask for descriptive literature and rates to-day, while you are in good health. To-morrow you may be uninsurable.

The Ford Saves the Hay and Oats the Horses Eat

IT HAS been estimated that five acres of land are required to maintain one horse for a year, and that the same five acres would produce nearly enough food for two people. If 50,000 Canadian farmers each replaced one horse with a Ford, 250,000 acres would be added to the Nation's source of food supply and enough extra food made available to feed 100,000 people.

Just think what a great service this means to the country at the present time and the benefit to the farmers from the sale of food produced on this acreage.

A Ford car also saves the farmer a week or more of valuable time each year, which can be used for further productive work. The Ford travels three times as fast as a horse and rig—costs less to run and keep, and is far easier to take care of. With labor so scarce and high priced, time means money, so do not delay in getting your Ford.
